

The Best 5 Android Apps for Web Designers

All web designers need to know about the best apps for doing this type of work, and there are quite a few ones for Android users. This list of the best 5 Android apps for web designers will give you some idea as to which ones you should look into getting, especially if you are serious about your profession.

1. Adobe Ideas

This particular app offers a lot of great options for web designers with a user-friendly interface. While Adobe may be down for their complex and heavy duty applications, Ideas is fairly simple and straightforward but still a very useful tool for those who do web design work. This app is available for Android users as well as those who have an iPhone or iPad.

2. Dropbox

Dropbox has become an extremely popular app/program, and it is perfect for web designers. This app allows people to upload their files to their account so they can access them anywhere they want at any time, as long as they have a computer or mobile device as well as an internet connection. Dropbox is also great for web designers because it will allow them to share files with clients, making it an invaluable tool.

3. Harvest

Harvest is a great applications that allows for online time-tracking and provides web designers as well as many others with a virtual timesheet. Web designers who want an easy and convenient way to record their time and expenses will find that Harvest is the perfect solution. This nice lightweight app is a great one for those who are involved in web design and like to stay organized.

4. Magic Color Picker

This color selection tool is absolutely perfect for web designers, programmers, and artists of all kinds. When it comes to selecting different colors, this app is a must have. With seven different supported modes along with RGB, HSV, YUV, and HSL color models as well as plette or sliders for adjusting colors, it is a great investment for any web designer. Selecting the right colors is important in web design work, so it is therefore a good idea to invest in a useful and easy-to-use app like this.

5. Fontest

This app is great for web designers and developers as a typography tool that can help with quickly previewing how various fonts look on a website or blog when rendered on an Android device. Version 6 of this app features 6 different high-quality fonts as well as support for adding your own TTF and OTF fonts. The fonts that a web designer uses are important to the overall look of the websites they create, which is precisely why it is so crucial to have this type of app installed on their mobile devices.

Anyone who does web design work, whether it is freelance or for a single company, should certainly look into getting these apps; many of them are free and can be great tools that make doing this sort of work a lot easier and more enjoyable.
